

(e) Married Quarters

The married quarters are planned as a group of single storey court houses on the west side of the Long Water, as the self-contained, introverted nature of these seems appropriate for family life. Every dwelling has, in addition to the accommodation required, a small private walled garden; 9 of the houses also have garages. All these houses are approached from the central drive leading from the Madingley Road; the house types Q, R, U, V and W are reached via a covered forecourt or patio and the others directly from the drive. The general layout for the three roomed houses, although varying in detail, follows a similar pattern. The generous living room overlooking the walled garden is in the centre of the house, one bedroom at least is accessible from the entrance lobby with direct access to the bathroom and separate W.C., while the other bedroom is approached via a sliding door from the living room and can serve either as a second bedroom or as a study. The roof over the living areas is raised in the form of a light vault and receives morning and evening sun through clerestory windows. Although sun can penetrate into all living rooms, those in the houses types T and U - which face north over their private gardens - have an additional outlook either toward the East or to the West. In type Q, the kitchen is planned as a dining or breakfast kitchen with the window towards the west and is only separated from the living room with a glazed screen. In type T both bedrooms are arranged on the entrance side and the living-dining room is extended in an L-shape round the garden receiving the morning sun. In type U the living room has been extended to the external wall and overlooks the Long Water between the house and the college.
